Eisler Deporis Himself

In view of the fact the United States has been trying to deport Gerhart Eisler, his decision to deport himself would seem to settle everything.

But it's never that simple. Eisler has jumped his bail for one thing. For another thing, he has a prison sentence hanging over him, unless the U. S. Supreme court upholds his appeal from a conviction for showing contempt of congress. These things already have cost the United States thousands of dollars in money wanted to prove that Eisler, who either was the No. 1 Communist mastermind in this country for a number of years or a close runnerup, shouldn't be permitted to stay here any more, a fact that was self-evident.

Yet, if possible, Eisler will be snatched off the ship he sailed on as a "stowaway"—it was a Polish ship and the quotation marks are needed for that reason. He will be brought back and argued over pro and con at great cost of money and time. Ultimately, he will be sent back where he came from and where he was willing to return under his own steam.

Delayed Reaction

Whether or not the General Assembly of Ohio finally decides to overspend the state's income it is capping in a spendthrift direction. Apparently, some of the members are having a delayed reaction from the war boom that isn't booming any more.

Naturally, they want to be generous to school-teachers, municipalities and the unemployed, among other worthy beneficiaries. But there's a vast difference between making fairer appropriations of income already in hand and more generous appropriations of income still in the bush.

In other words, what is being described as a legislative revolt against Governor Lausche's no-new-taxation policy could turn very easily into a revolt against the interests of Ohio taxpayers. Their position on the question of whether or not to spend more public money is clear, or should be. Inflation is now a thing of the past.

Like the taxpayers of all other states, Ohioans want a substantial reduction of federal taxes. They want no increase of state taxes. They are willing to stand for reasonable increases of local taxes where it can be demonstrated clearly that increases are necessary.

The notion seemingly popular in the General Assembly that taxes can be boosted to underwrite a net increase in state spending isn't going to be popular among the Ohioans who would be expected to dig down to cover the check.

No Compromise

Mr. Truman's no-compromise position on labor-management relations and taxation may be sound. Perhaps that's the way a politician must do things.

But as a general proposition, a no-compromise position is trickier to hold than a high-voltage wire in a windstorm. In the first place, it's not consistent with the principle of representative democracy, which assumed that people can govern themselves by give-and-take decisions.

In the second place, it's out of gear with the well known fact that nothing remains the same very long in the United States. If Mr. Truman will think back to what he knows about the origin of the Taft-Hartley act, he will recall that union spokesmen adopted a no-compromise attitude when the law was under discussion. That's what he is doing now—while some of the same union spokesmen are showing signs of wanting to do a little compromising.

Standing firm in the face of adversity can be admirable. It also can be foolhardy, as when a Missouri mule refuses to budge. Mr. Truman has missed a great chance to ease tensions and apprehensions by admitting that he knows how self-government operates—by compromise.

Recognition Of Israel

It has been a year since an independent Zionist state, the republic of Israel, was proclaimed and immediately recognized by the United States and the Soviet Union. The decision by the United Nations to admit Israel as the 59th member of its assembly marks the republic's first anniversary.

Since its existence as a member of the modern family of nations had developed in large part out of United Nations decisions, Israel's recognition by U. N. is consistent and logical. Certainly its claim to membership is as valid as the claims of the Arab States which tried to exclude it.

Beyond this formalized recognition of the U. N. is the more meaningful recognition of people in all nations who now take the existence of an independent Zionist state for granted. A year is no more than an instant in history, but behind Israel's first year are centuries of experiences and events, all leading up to establishment of a Jewish homeland.

True, there is much to be done in Palestine. But there is a great will to do it among the citizens of the new republic and a great will to help them among their friends of other nationalities. The omen for Israel's success is bright. It may be that in this troubled interval of trial and error the creation of this new state will emerge as one of the most constructive achievements of the United States.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, May 14
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A SUBTLE situation, an inexplicable turn of events, having curious angles, may seem bewildering, baffling and complicated, beyond reasonable and practical bounds. A matter, glamorous, elusive, intriguing, may come up for decision, its import alluring, fortunate and pleasant if properly handled. However the affair may become more complex and involved unless managed with sound and calm reason and logic rather than feelings, emotions or ideals, and the mentality seems to lean toward the obscure and chaotic. Make decisions on a basis of the realistic, practical.

For the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, are confronted by a year of peculiar circumstances, complex, strange and glamorous, with unaccountable or fantastic experiences. Such are fortunate, pleasant, and not dangerous if wisely manipulated, and on a basis of reality, not dreams or fantasies. Feelings, emotions, intuitions and "hunches" are strong, and should be handled objectively. Unfortunately, mental processes seem as unreliable and involved as the subtler drives. Try to take a course of action inspired by higher or more spiritual values rather than the bewitchment of glamor or "day dreams."

A child born on this day is deeply immersed in the feelings, sensations, emotions, with strong urges to the idealistic and elusive rather than the workaday and logical. Its mentality should be directed to realistic conclusions.

Approximately 3,000,000 babies were born in the United States during 1947.

Child Won't Outgrow Cross-Eye

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.
All too many parents believe that cross-eye is one of those things which the child will "outgrow." This is a bad mistake. Statistics show that scarcely one child out of 1,000 with cross-eye will correct this defect without proper treatment. Furthermore, the sooner treatment is begun, the better the results will be, so let me urge all parents of cross-eyed youngsters to secure treatment for them at once.

Cross-eye seems to run in certain families.

About nine out of 10 children whose eyes are crossed before the age of six have some abnormal condition of the eye muscles.

At birth, all babies are farsighted. This condition is soon outgrown and, by the time the child is eight years old, he has normal vision. In some instances, however, this farsightedness remains. In these cases, there is a tendency for the eyes to cross, the condition usually developing by the time the child is two and one-half to three years old. This farsightedness can be corrected with glasses and, if the cross-eye is due to the farsightedness, wearing the glasses will overcome the cross-eye.

The cross-eyed person does not see double; instead, he sees only with one eye. In some types of cross-eye, the child may use first one eye and then the other, but he does not use both together. If the eye which crosses is not used, the vision in this eye may be gradually lost. Eventually it will return if the child is forced to use the weak eye. This is done by covering the good eye.

If the eyes are still not straight after farsightedness is corrected with glasses, and vision has been returned to the weak eye by keeping the good eye covered, an operation may be necessary. Only children whose eyes are crossed very slightly can be cured by glasses and eye exercises alone. Eye exercises do not strengthen the weak muscles of the eye. Their action is to teach the child to use his two eyes together. If the eye is severely crossed, taking exercises week after week will not strengthen them.

If, by the time a child is a year

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP)—A big part of mankind, which had stumbled into a ditch, picked itself up today, keeping a sharp eye out for booby traps, and started down a new road.

This happened in Germany where the Berlin blockade ended at midnight.

What was really lifted was the blockade on the peace hopes of the East and West.

We'll know more about that after the start of the May 23 meeting between the United States, Britain, Russia and France.

Ever since word leaked out that Russia might lift the blockade, I've been reading everything I could find, looking for the reason.

This is a great experience and recommended reading—not for the exact information you'll get, but just to see how many people can be puzzled in print.

YESTERDAY, JUST before the blockade was lifted, Secretary of State Acheson said a few cold words about the meeting with Russia.

He said the Russians will get nowhere if they try to throw sand in the machinery the West has set up for bringing Germany back to life. So, before the talks start, Russia has a warning not to try tricks. And we're still talking of arming western Europe, and probably will.

This makes the Russians uneasy although they have made the West uneasy for a year with the Berlin blockade.

They've been tough, and we got tough, and there's nothing to show that either side has become less tough.

This ought to be enough to cool off anyone who has illusions that peace with Russia will come easily or at any price.

And since the Big Four talks ought to last quite a while, it will be some time before you know whether we all land in another ditch.

But at the moment, except for what's happening in China, the earth is comparatively quiet.

In Greece the Communists and government troops still take pot shots at one another.

AND YESTERDAY the Arab nations walked out of the United Nations when the new Jewish state of Israel was admitted as the 59th member.

Whether the Arab countries will stay in the U.N. or stay out, is not known. Their delegates simply said when they left: "Wait and see."

(Some of the Arab countries' representatives returned for a late night meeting, indicating the protest was ended.)

In China, through the Communists are still plugging ahead, their hearts set on all China. Peace there is remote.

Of course, that may have something to do with Russia's wanting to get along peacefully with the west, for a while, at least.

With half of Europe under Communism, all Russia, all Siberia and all China more or less soon to be under Communism, the Russians may think they'll have their hands full for a while.

Some of the people who have been guessing about Russia's intentions guess that way. But this story could run on for a thousand words, stringing all the guesses together.

At this point, your guess is as good as mine, or somebody else's.

Frank Blamer, Hugh Criss, and Jack Sapia, were participants in the Minerva High school May day celebration. "The Return of the 49ers" was the theme of the event. The story was a panorama of American life during the years of the past century. Ranging from the gold rush to the end of World War II, it illustrated the democratic life in the United States.

Death Instead Of Spring Came In '45 On Okinawa

(Editors Note: Ben Price, now a member of the Atlanta bureau of the Associated Press, was a second lieutenant with the Sixth Marine division when it "stumbled on" Sugar Loaf hill in Southern Okinawa, May 12, 1945. Here is his own anniversary story.)

By BEN PRICE
ATLANTA, May 13—(AP)—Everything is green now and that's what makes remembering hard.

There were trees on the Sugar Loaf, but they weren't green. They were the dead wood from which crucifixes are made.

You see, spring did not come to the Sugar Loaf four years ago today and a half a world away. Death did.

It was the last great battle of World War II, a decisive battle that turned a flank and won an island. You may remember the island. It was a place called Okinawa.

The battle was a hand-to-hand affair where grenades were rolled not thrown, where men strangled each other to death in muddy holes. It was a battle where men fought at 20 paces or less with flames, knives, pistols, rifles and even rocks.

Some men died on the road to Sugar Loaf at places called Half-moon and Horseshoe Hills.

The Sugar Loaf was just a grayish-brown bowl of earth garnished by gnarled trees. It was supported on two flanks by the other hills and dominated by the guns of Shuri castle.

It was the key to the whole defense system of Southern Okinawa and honeycombed with tunnels which were proof against the Navy's biggest shells and the Air Forces' biggest bombs. Nobody knew that, though, on May 12, 1945, a bright, sunny day after weeks of dreary rains. The Sugar Loaf just looked like another hill.

A weary, battle-grimed captain, Owen T. Stebbins of the Sixth Marine division, eyed the hill and started his men toward it. Four men reached the top. Capt. Stebbins was a stretcher case.

That was the beginning. For 10 days Marines stormed the hill and each time there were not enough survivors left to hold it. Eleven times, maybe it was 12, they went up.

The books now call the Japanese defense of the Sugar Loaf a "classic in static defense." In a way the Sugar Loaf was doing for Okinawa what the Maginot Line was supposed to do for France.

The Sugar Loaf was making war a battle of attrition. But no war of attrition reckons with men like Corp. Donald "Rusty" Golar.

Rusty arrived at the top of the Loaf in one piece. He had half a dozen companions in similar condition. The others were sprawled on the face of the slope, dead or wounded.

For nearly a whole day Rusty was a one-man war. He fought with a light machine gun, a pistol, grenades, an automatic rifle and carbines. When he had exhausted all his means of battle, Rusty threw a couple of rocks at the Japanese, picked up a wounded comrade and started for the rear.

Rusty got his then. Carefully he placed the wounded man on the ground, set down and died.

By the time it was over, the division counted 2,662 dead and wounded spent taking a least-up worthless hill.

After it was over men sat in the mud and cried. Some prayed. Some just sat, stunned by weariness.

Heroes were counted by the dozens. One was Corp. Walter G. Parker, who gathered four enemy grenades under him to prevent injury to his squad. The miracle was that Parker lived.

And when it was all over there still was no spring on Sugar Loaf. Have you forgotten? Could you forget?

The meeting will be of an educational nature to inform citizens of what the law may do and how they may proceed to make affidavits against violators of traffic regulations. Many citizens are back of the movement for a rigorous enforcement of traffic laws since the fatal crash last Friday evening which took the lives of two boys, although it occurred outside the corporation limits.

After graduation comes opportunity!

The approach of Commencement Day 1949, brings many high school seniors face to face with a big question — what next?

There's one big opportunity to which every high school graduate should give serious consideration. This is the career offered you in today's Regular Army.

Few openings in private enterprise offer you the leadership training, the educational advantages, the exciting travel and adventure, the supervised sports and recreation programs and the clean, wholesome, active life that can be yours with an Army enlistment.

Few openings offer you such comradeship with America's best young men — for today — only the best are acceptable for service in the United States Army.

To win a place in today's Regular Army you must pass physical examinations that are tougher, mental examinations more difficult — than ever before.

And with these more rigid requirements you will face keener all-round competition for assignment to the more than 200 courses offered at Army technical and specialty schools.

The rewards are also greater — opportunity for advancement is limited only by your ability and initiative. Many of today's general officers began their careers as Privates. Some of today's Privates may be our future Generals!

Appointments to Officer's Candidate Schools and to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point are available to those who can make the grade. In what other field can you aspire so high?

You owe it to yourself to get all the facts. See the friendly recruiting officer at your local U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station today. He will be happy to give you full details without any obligation to you.

Washington Mouse On Merry-Go-Round For Sake of Science

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
WASHINGTON, May 13—(AP)—A Washington mouse is riding a merry-go-round in the interest of science.

His bosses, scientists at the Department of Agriculture, are playing like he is a cow. But the stakes are real—$1,000,000 or more.

Every time the miniature carousel revolves, the mouse gets—not a brass ring, but a spray of chemical. If it will kill flies on a mouse, the researchers figure it will knock them dead on a cow.

The chemical may be any one of 5,000 mystery chemicals on the scientists' shelves. Any one may be more potent than DDT.

When the merry-go-round stops the mouse pays his fare—in mouse blood.

He's put in a cage with 20 hungry stable flies. If the chemical repels them it is thrown out. But if the flies bite the mouse and then die within 24 hours the stuff is worth trying on cows. (The same mouse is used over and over.)

Where does the $1,000,000 come in?

Cause Damage
Some scientists estimate the "important" insects cause far more than a thousand times this much damage in one year. If only one insecticide as good as DDT comes out of the 5,000 mystery compounds, the saving could be well worth far more than $1,000,000.

Where does the mouse on the merry-go-round come in?

The scientists are seeking an insecticide to kill stable flies—which DDT doesn't always kill.

Most stable flies are found around stables and cows and horses. But to test all of those 5,000 compounds on sows and horses, in stables, would be a long-drawn expensive job.

The scientists say one compound a day can be tested with a mouse but that it would take two weeks if cows were used. The cost might be 100 times as much.

These 5,000 compounds come from various places. Some are the by-products of some scientific project, or were produced for some other purpose but are believed to have bug-killing possibilities. Others were put together by chemists who thought the combination should be a bug-killer.

Some New
Some are brand new. Others have been sitting around in laboratories for years—just as DDT did before it was found to be a fly and house-killer.

Dr. Edward F. Knirring, directing the study of insects affecting man and animals, says about a dozen chemical compounds have been earmarked for further testing after showing promising results with the mouse carousel.

The merry-go-round may go for years. Even after a stable fly insecticide is discovered, there will be other experiments to find more potent killers of other insects.

Once people were used in the tests. They let the flies bite them. Now the mouse takes the bites.

What does the mouse get out of it?

The scientists swear the mice like their free merry-go-round rides and enjoy every whiff of the scented chemicals shot upon them.

The main reason for the merry-go-round device is efficient, speedy spraying of the mouse, who passes a stationary jet every time around.

Corn Cob Alcohol Boosts Octane Rate Of Gasoline

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
WASHINGTON—(AP)—You never know what the Agriculture department will be up to next.

Now its scientists are testing new high compression automobile engines which increase gasoline mileage up to 30 per cent with alcohol-water-gasoline fuels.

Dr. R. T. Milner, director of the Northern Regional Research Laboratories of the Department of Agriculture, says one reason high compression engines are not now widely used is the fuel problem. They require high-octane fuels, costlier than those now used in cars, and it requires more crude oil to produce high-octane gasoline.

But Dr. Milner says that when alcohol and water are sprayed into engines using gasoline now marketed as "premium" grade, with an octane rating around 80, the gasoline will perform in a high compression engine like 100-octane fuel under some conditions. And this doesn't increase the cost of the fuel.

Dr. Milner says the alcohol-water method may save considerable gasoline—and money for the motorist—when new high compression engines come into general use.

(The octane number indicates the fuel's anti-knock quality. Most 1949 cars can use "regular" gasoline with about 74-octane rating. But extremely high compression engines take 85-octane or higher. As the octane number rises, the gasoline is more expensive to produce.)

The government experiments are independent of some private research. Agriculture officials are interested because they want to boost the consumption of alcohol made from farm crops and farm waste products such as corn cobs.

Dr. Milner disclosed results of the latest tests today. He said a government truck was driven on two round-trips from the research laboratory at Peoria, Ill., to Memphis, Tenn. The distance was about 1000 miles each trip.

On the first trip the engine was equipped with a stock cylinder head with a compression ratio of 6.8 to 1. This is similar to the heads of many 1949 cars. Normally this engine would require about 75-octane, or "regular," gasoline.

But on the trip it used 58-octane gasoline and an alcohol-water injector. (58-octane gasoline isn't available at most gasoline stations.)

The truck consumed about six per cent less fuel with the injector than it did when 75-octane gasoline alone was used.

The 58-octane gasoline is several cents cheaper than 74-octane, so the saving in money was considerably more than six per cent. (Dr. Milner said the alcohol was approximately the same price as gasoline.)

The government announcement said that at under 40 miles an hour, on a level road, an average engine will operate satisfactorily on gasoline of 50-octane rating or lower.

It needs higher octane gasoline only on hard pulls and at high speed to prevent engine "knock" or pinging.

Since ordinary gasoline is 74-octane or better, the announcement said, most of this anti-knock quality is wasted most of the time. The alcohol-water injector adds this quality to low octane gasoline only when needed.

On the second trip the truck used an engine with a compression ratio of 8 1/4-to-1. Normally it would require 85-octane, or "premium" fuel. But on the trip 74-octane, or "regular" grade gasoline was used.

The truck used about 10 per cent less fuel than would have been used if 85-octane fuel alone had been used, the announcement said.

The Peoria was started in 1940 to develop methods of making alcohol and other products from farm crops and residues at a reasonable cost.

Dr. Milner said these methods have been developed but that the price of alcohol now is so low it isn't profitable to manufacture corn cob alcohol.

But if more demand can be created for alcohol the price might rise to the point where farm residues could be used. So the project promises benefits for both the farmer and the motorist.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Write a hit song—and there's $30,000 to $35,000 in it for you.

"And everybody in America today seems to be trying to write a hit song except me," says Manie Sacks, the man behind many a disc jockey.

Manie knows better than to try. The odds are too high.

As head of artists and repertoire for Columbia Records, Sacks selects the songs for a firm which mints some $3,000,000 phonograph records a year.

After a quarter of a century in the music industry, Manie, a small, sensitive-looking man of 43, is convinced there is no formula for turning out a hit tune.

"Anybody who tells you he can write a sure hit is as crazy as a guy who says he knows how a horse race is going to turn out."

Besides reviewing the grist submitted by professional song publishers, Manie and his assistants look over 100 to 150 songs by amateurs each week.

"Only one or two a year by unknown writers turn out to be worth recording," he said.

A current example is "Riders in the Sky," written by a western folk singer and popularized by Burl Ives, the folk singer.

"The singer ought to make $30,000 from it," said Manie. "Anyway, he quit looking for fires."

Sacks has noted a distinct change in the public's music tastes since the war.

"They aren't interested in loud music, jam sessions or any kind of music that plays away from the melody itself," he said.

"Be-Bop hasn't a chance. It's a fad. I can't understand it, and I don't know anyone who can explain it and make sense."

The record market is in a slump and buyers are becoming more selective.

"They don't just want a record anymore," Manie grinned. "They want a production. Along with the dance band music they want singers or a choral group—at least some extra gimmick."

Today any record that sells to 250,000 customers is highly successful. Only five or six records a year make the real hit class—1,000,000 or more. And they last only four to six months at the top.

"One of the reasons the industry is off is that too many song writers are turning out tunes like they were hostility or cigarettes—on a mass production basis," said Sacks.

"Men like Oscar Hammerstein, Cole Porter or Irving Berlin don't work that way. It is a matter of ego with them to turn out really successful songs."

"So they work on them and change them around until they have them right."

"Berlin has 16 songs in his next musical show, 'Miss Liberty.' He did at least eight of them five times over, lyrics as well as music. He never tries to make quantity take the place of quality."

To have a wide sheet music sale a song now usually has to do well as a recording, too. Because he selects the songs to be recorded, Manie has a number of mysterious visitors. They sometimes leave envelopes on his desk heavy with government green.

The visitors are song pluggers trying to place their wares. And the little packages they drop would be known in some circles as bribes.

"If I took them I wouldn't be in my job long," said Manie. "We just call the people back and suggest if they are interested in charity we'll forward their contribution to the Damon Runyon Cancer fund."

"There is more larceny in this business than in any other business in the country."

TREND IS TOWARD LOWER PRICED TELEVISION SETS

Some Firms Get Price Under $200 For 7-Inch Tube

By WAYNE OLIVER
NEW YORK (AP)—The trend toward lower priced television sets has gained momentum in recent weeks and promises to continue. The trend is developing along two lines:

1.—Straight out price reductions on sets of the same quality and performance.
2.—New models stripped of all but the bare essentials, for the benefit of buyers who want to get into television at the least possible cost.

Not all manufacturers have made reductions, but lowered prices have been so widespread as to bring averages down considerably. And some of the best known brands are among the ones offered at new lows.

Some set makers contend no further substantial price drops can be expected the remainder of this year, while others declare the trend hasn't been halted.

But practically all—with an eye to selling current models—contend price reductions over the next several months won't be enough to offset the fun the buyer would have during that time by getting a set now.

A number of factors are contributing to the downward price trend in television, including mass production economies, lower material costs and new techniques. But the principal one is the arrival of a buyers' market.

From the start of the television boom until recently, manufacturers were unable to expand production fast enough to keep up with demand as the public bought anything that flickered. The set makers were limited by bottlenecks in supplies of glass blanks or finished picture tubes. But these bottlenecks have largely disappeared and about the only bottleneck left is price.

Make Plastic Cabinets
Some manufacturers have been turning to plastic cabinets to produce sets at lower prices. General Electric a few weeks ago brought out a table model with 10-inch picture tube and plastic cabinet for $239.95—or some $85 below the firm's previous cheapest model.

Admiral has just announced a plastic console with 10-inch tube and 61 square inches of picture for $249.95, which it claims is $100 below any other comparable model.

One small manufacturer reportedly is ready to spring a 10-inch table set with plastic cabinet for a few cents under $200.

The trend has been evident in other sizes, too. RCA Victor established a new low for big sets early in the year with its 18-inch table model, giving about 120 square inches of picture, for $495. But since then, others have brought out sets with approximately the same size picture for prices ranging down to less than $400. Sets with seven-inch tubes giving postcard size pictures have been edging down toward the $125 mark.

Some set manufacturers have been devoting a lot of work toward developing sets that will operate with indoor antennas in most locations so purchasers won't have to pay additional installation fees. Pilot, Motorola and others have sets with attached indoor antennas that they claim will work most places.

Tele-Tone has a novel built-in antenna consisting of two reels of steel tape that become rigid when extended and roll up inside the set when not in use.

Crime Comics Banned In Cleveland Council Act

CLEVELAND, May 13—(AP)—City council voted unanimously last night to ban the sale of crime-featuring comic books to youths under 18.

The measure provides a penalty of six months in the workhouse and a $500 fine.

An amendment to make printers, publishers and distributors also liable was defeated.

Details of how the city will determine which books violate the ordinance were not disclosed immediately.

The council also passed a resolution allowing fireworks displays—but no detonating bombs—at night baseball games in the stadium. City officials previously had contended the bombs had loosened pieces of concrete.

U.S. OFFERS WAR PROOF ON PRAGUE

Aims To Stop Red Story That Russia Freed Czech Capital

WASHINGTON, May 12—(AP)—Aiming to stop Communist propaganda claims, the United States today offered official wartime evidence that American troops were ready to free the capital of Czechoslovakia, but held back at Russia's request.

The State department made public records bearing on the point because Moscow and the Czech Communists have been giving Russia all the credit for the liberation of Prague from the Nazis four years ago.

Among the documents released yesterday was a Soviet request to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to halt his fast-moving American troops at Pilsen, some 50 miles short of the Czech capital. Eisenhower complied. Four days later the Soviet army routed the last Nazis from Prague.

In taking the U.S.-Russian messages out of storage, the State department said the American forces were acting for military purposes—in this case to avoid confusion with the approaching Red army—not for political reasons.

In a message dated May 4, 1945, Eisenhower notified the Russian high command his forces were ready to sweep on to the Elbe and Vltava rivers and thus enter the valley in which Prague is situated.

The next day brought this prompt letter from Gen. Antonov, chief of the Red army general staff: "The Soviet command requests General Eisenhower to refrain from advancing the Allied forces in Czechoslovakia beyond the formerly designated line." That line ran through the towns of Karlsbad, Pilsen and Budweis—and that's where the U.S. troops halted their advance.

The State department said it published the texts—paraphrased because they were taken from secret coded documents—because of the "many false statements and interpretations" surrounding the episode.

SEND AMBASSADOR TO SPAIN, TAFT, BREWSTER ARGUE

WASHINGTON, May 13—(UP)—Sens. Robert A. Taft, (R) of Ohio and Owen Brewster (R) of Maine today joined the ranks of influential congressmen demanding full-scale U. S. diplomatic recognition of Spain.

Both senators urged that this government send an ambassador to Madrid promptly. They said that if the United States can maintain relations with Russia and her satellites, there is no reason for any boycott of the Franco government.

Sen. Taft demanded that the State department "shake loose from the Communist-front philosophy that seems to have guided its Spanish policy up to this time."

Sen. Brewster said that Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson himself has conceded that the diplomatic boycott against Spain has failed to weaken the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

"So we stick to it," he said. "For how long? Until Spain goes Communist?"

Several other senators have expressed similar views in the past few days. Among them have been Chairman Tom Connally (D) of Texas of the senate foreign relations committee and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, ranking committee Republican.

Acheson told a press conference yesterday that the Franco government does not recognize the basic freedoms essential to any member of the free nations of the world. Until it does, he indicated, the United States should not send an ambassador to Madrid.

The United States has not had an ambassador in Spain since 1945 when the United Nations recommended that all member nations sever their diplomatic relations with Franco.
